Sheriff's Dept. drug roundup nets 32 suspects; more arrests expected

Just a few short years ago, few people in Hancock County had even heard of such substances as crystal meth and crack cocaine. Now, those powerful narcotics are part of a growing menace, rapidly invading our neighborhoods and even our schools.

"That's why we're doing this," sheriff's department narcotics agent Clifton "Bubba" Malley said Tuesday, en route to Catahoula to clear out a "nest of crack dealers."

Before the "crack" of dawn Tuesday, Hancock sheriff's officers conducted a county-wide roundup, arresting 32 people on the suspicion of drug trafficking and related offenses.

Officers had a total of 43 arrest warrants in hand and headed to the Catahoula Community, Pearlinton, Clermont Harbor, Lakeshore, Bayside, Shoreline Park, Bienville Community, Flat top Community, Kiln, Bay St. Louis and Waveland.

Sheriff Steve Garber said he was "well pleased" with the number of suspects nabbed Tuesday morning, following an undercover investigation of about three months.

"We awakened many suspects in the roundup," Garber said, "and we were fortunate no officers received any types of injuries. The

Councilman Seal protests bond issue, fears higher debt

A $2 million general obligation bond for capital improvements was approved Tuesday by Bay St. Louis City Council. Most of the money will finance a comprehensive street-resurfacing program.

What's left over from that and accompanying drainage work will go for improvements to sidewalks, parking and the city's water system.

Officials say they'll need to boost taxes by four to five mills to pay off the 10-year debt. That concept brought protests from Ward 1 council member Doug Seal: "Yeah, we need streets paved, but at what cost?" Seal said. "It really worries me that we're putting ourselves deeper in the hole for 10 years."

Job fair attracts 900 job seekers, 22 employers

BY SHANNON JENKINS
Staff Writer

Approximately 900 people visited the job fair at the Hancock County Civic Center on Wednesday, said Hancock County Chamber of Commerce Director Tish Williams.

The event, which lasted from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m., offered 22 exhibitors from companies such as Nissan, Wal-Mart and Lockheed Martin.

Williams said the average number of job seekers per booth was 250. There were a total of 1,650 resumes submitted with 216 provisional job offers and 88 firm job offers. An estimated number of hires within next year was 385. These numbers, Williams said, do not include Wal-Mart, whose figures will not be complete until Saturday. Wal-Mart is offering approximately 250 jobs.

"We are very pleased with the results of the show," Williams said. "The response has been tremendous."

She said several exhibitors asked to make the fair an annual event. Williams said the fair was initially organized in response to Alcan Cable closing in August, but was open to everyone. Although the chamber managed the event, she said it was organized on behalf of the entire community.

"Everyone stepped up to make this a success," she said.

Joy Domin, a director with The Pampered Chef, had never participated in a job fair in Hancock County before.

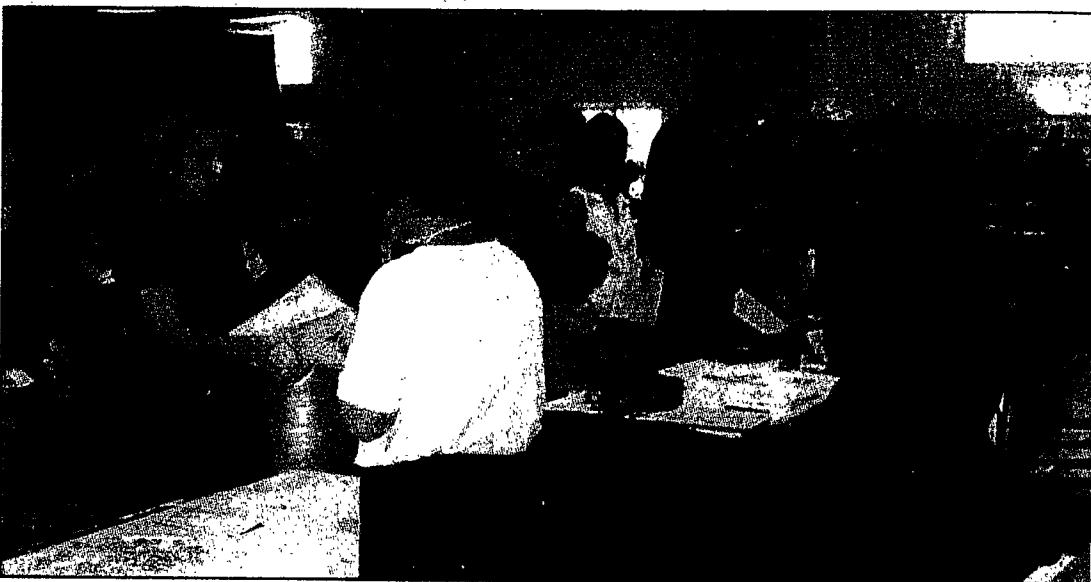

"We plan to participate next year if the fair is held again," she said.

Domin said she was impressed with the response because there were more people there than she expected.

Rick Stokes, the plant manager for Alcan Cable, was equally impressed. He said Tish Williams and the chamber brought quality employers to the job fair. Stokes took advantage of the fair to help search for jobs for the 116 employees who must find work once the plant closes in mid-August.

He talked with all the employers there in hopes of being a good reference for the Alcan workers.

Hanock School Board elects new president

BY SHANNON JENKINS
Staff Writer

A shift in power occurred at the July 7 meeting of the Hancock County School Board when Larry Seal, District 5, proposed to hold elections for officers.

The board held an election in January when newly-elected Morgan Ladner and Seal took office, but the election was unsuccessful. In January, Morgan Ladner nominated Peggy Ladner for president, pitting her against then-president, Cheryl Bennett.

The vote ended in a tie with Seal abstaining from voting, resulting in an unsuccessful election. Under board policy, Bennett had continue serving as the presiding officer until a successful election could be held.

Seal said he was "totally unprepared to make a decision and chose to abstain" during the election in January.

In the July meeting, however, Seal cited Robert's Rules, which state that a board should continue to repeat elections until one is successful.

This time, Seal nominated Peggy Ladner for president.

"Peggy has shown a keen interest in our school system and wanted the job," Seal said. "Ms. Bennett has had the position many years and I felt, after observing the board for six months, that it was time for a change. Therefore, I called the election as it was my opinion that a successful election could now be held."

At this meeting, Bennett and Larry Peterson voted to keep the officers as they were while the remaining members voted for Peggy Ladner as president.

Ladner was elected as president with Morgan Ladner as secretary.

Safe Kids sponsors car seat safety checkpoint

Mississippi has one of the highest rates for child motor vehicle occupant death in the nation, and in most cases, these deaths could have been prevented.

"They result from kids being completely unbuckled or in the wrong or misused seat," said Amanda Sullivan, project coordinator for Mississippi SAFE KIDS Campaign. "They also result from too many parents not knowing the risks. Child safety seats, when correctly installed and used, can prevent injury and save lives."

To address child passenger safety in South Mississippi, the Gulf Coast Chapter of Mississippi Safe Kids and Harrison County Project Homestead are sponsoring a car seat safety checkpoint at the new Wal-Mart in Pass Christian. Get your child's safety seat inspected by certified technicians July 12, from 9 a.m. until 2 p.m. in the Wal-Mart parking lot, located at 1617 East Beach Boulevard, Pass Christian. Parents should not miss this opportunity for their child's car seat to be inspected for recalls, proper installation and the age and weight suitability of the restraint for the child.

"Using and installing a car seat correctly is a lot harder than one might imagine," Sullivan said. "From Oct. 1, 2001, through Sept. 30, 2002, Mississippi SAFE KIDS has conducted almost 3000 car seat checks. Of those, 99 percent were misused."

Car seats reduce the risk of death by 71 percent for infants under age 1 and 54 percent for toddlers ages 1 to 4 when properly used and installed.

You need not live in Harrison County to take advantage of this event - members of surrounding communities are encouraged to participate. A limited number of new car seats will be available in exchange for those found with defects.

Tied-up Tidelands funds in the Bay?

BY MARY G. SEILEY
Staff Writer

Bay St. Louis Mayor Eddie Favre said Tuesday he'd rather lose $450,000 in Tidelands funds than to be forced to "waste" the money on an unwanted and infeasible project around the Jimmy Rutherford Fishing Pier.

Favre made the comment in an interview concerning the city's next steps to win state approval for a new downtown parking and beach access project.

He and members of City Council met Monday with state Rep. J.P. Compretta and Sen. Scottie Cuevas concerning the city's quest for over $1.1 million in Tidelands money next year.

Almost half of that sum, $450,000, already has been tagged for use by the city at the Rutherford Pier, in prior Tidelands appropriations by the state Legislature.

But applying the money to expand parking facilities near the Ulman Avenue pier raised a political storm and an engineering nightmare. City officials want to redirect the money to buying a parking lot next to the Fire Dog Saloon and a beach lot directly across the street.

And the city wants to get an additional $700,000 in Tidelands money to bankroll a multi-year project involving a beach-level boardwalk and small "finger pier" to afford short-term tie ups at the areas restaurants and shops. Ultimately, the city wants to build a small parking garage to accommodate shoppers and beachgoers.

But there are some big political pitfalls that could hamper or kill the project. Favre said his "big concern" is in getting the $450,000 legally untangled from the Rutherford pier.

He's been advised by the Department of Marine Resources, which administers Tidelands funding, that money "must go back in the hopper" at the state level to be re-allocated.

Compretta said that getting a special bill through the Legislature to redirect the use of $450,000 "might be a problem" because it would cast a "spotlight" on the Bay's allocation. "It's going to raise some eyebrows," said Compretta.

But putting the entire $1.15 million in next year's DMR appropriation bill for the Bay's project could be as risky, the lawmakers said, noting intense competition for Tidelands money.

Cuevas said it's a tough assignment to win major appropriations for the Bay's waterfront projects and funding for the county Board of Supervisors; projects as well. This year, the county got $200,000 for upgrades at the nearby Washington Street Pier.

City officials weren't sure Monday what the county is seeking for next year — but Cuevas urged the city to coordinate its project with what the county plans on doing.

"Most everybody is trying to protect their own turf," said Compretta.

Meanwhile, Ward 1 council member Doug Seal expressed concern over the idea that the city be in a position that it must use the $450,000 on the Rutherford Pier, or lose it.

"That's wrong. We're trying to do something worthwhile."

At-large council member Bill Taylor said he fears the city will lose the prior appropriations altogether.

Favre said the city could use some of that money to build a street-level sidewalk linking the Dock of the Bay to the Rutherford pier. But an engineering report is needed first, to see if the city can get the rights-of-way needed for that project.

Otherwise, uses for the $450,000 in that immediate area are seriously in question. Residents have made it clear they don't want a major parking facility there.

Favre told council that trying to bundle the prior appropriation with new ones is chancy. "But the project we have is a good project...a total project" that will be high quality like the Rutherford Pier itself.

Being forced to spend the $450,000 on unwanted upgrades, he said, is not the way to go. "We could go over there and stripe the streets in gold, but what good would that do?"

Favre and City Council members plan to give DMR a formal presentation soon on the new proposal, and push for a recommendation for funding at that level. DMR's recommendations go to the Legislature in January for inclusion in the DMR annual appropriation bill.

Favre said later that Monday's meeting was productive because the city was able to lay out details of its new plan to the two legislators who will be key in fighting for it.

"Hopefully we will be able to show to the DMR and the Legislature that we're not going to waste any money," the mayor said. "If we would spend it (at the Rutherford Pier), it would be a waste of money. I would rather lose it than waste it."

PRCC Hancock Alumni to meet

Frank Ladner, president of the Hancock County Pearl River Community College Alumni Association, dropped by Wednesday morning to report the association's election will take place Monday evening.

The PRCC Hancock Alumni will meet at 5 p.m., Monday, July 14, at the Court Annex, Highway 90, Bay St. Louis, next to the Bay Library.

There will be an election of officers Ladner said, in addition to the distribution of tickets for the Seafood Plate Fish Fry which is set for Friday, August 1, 5 to 8 p.m. at the Hancock County Civic Center.

It seems a short while ago I was writing an article about the formation of the PRCC Hancock Alumni Association forming and the fish fry will already be the third annual fund raiser.

There are no dues to belong to the local alumni group for PRCC and proceeds from the fish fry are used to help fund scholarships to PRCC for Hancock County students.

Ladner indicates membership keeps growing and he knows there are still many more in Hancock County who are eligible alumni of PRCC whom he would like to see become members.

For further information on the Alumni Association, or ticket purchase by the general public, call Ladner at 467-7130.

One of the big discussions on my last vacation was the lack of litter in the areas we visited.

The two states we spent the most time in was Illinois and Wisconsin.

It was very surprising for a city the size of Chicago to be litter free. I never realized the amount of farm lands in Illinois and Wisconsin, yet even the rural areas were all litter free.

I cannot understand why our communities have so much litter.

True, we are considered a resort area, which is similar to many we visited out-of-state, yet they were litter free.

Our residents, as well as visitors need to realize there are some folks who care about how our community looks.

Through the efforts of everyone we can become litter free.

'Ever is a Long Time' gives insight into growing up in segregated Miss.

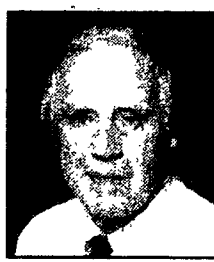

Ralph Eubanks gives us a rare insight into growing up in a small segregated Mississippi town during the 1950s and 1960s, having parents considered then as "uppity Negroes."

Eubanks is just out with a small book he entitled "Ever is a Long Time," written after he came back to his hometown of Mt. Olive to rediscover his roots and understand the complexities of how the system worked and how his professional mother and father were subordinated to it.

Now publications director of the Library of Congress in Washington, with a sizable staff under him, and father of two D.C.-born sons, Eubanks makes very clear that his love for Mississippi, with all its flaws, has never flagged.

Two events triggered his journey back to his roots and to examine how segregation worked back in his growing-up years, and search out some still alive who operated the levers of the system's power. Some, in their hearts, still have no remorse for their former roles.

Eyes on Mississippi

By Bill Minor

One occurred four years ago when his 10 year-old son, while being tucked into bed, asked his father "What is Mississippi really like?"

The second was when the files of the old segregationists' state Sovereignty Commission were opened in 1998. Eubanks found on the Commission web site the names of both his mother, a former schoolteacher, and his late father, a former County Agent with the Mississippi Agricultural Extension service.

As Eubanks emphasizes, his father was officially known as the "Negro" County Agent, which distinguished him from his white counterpart County Agent. But the elder Eubanks always commanded respect, being addressed as "Mr." even, in the white community.

His growing up in the Mississippi segregation system as practiced in Mt. Olive, until he left for good in 1974 after graduating from the previously all-white Mt. Olive High School, was kept remark-

MAY BE THE CURE

It's not too late to prepare

Tropical Storm Bill, soaking the Gulf Coast recently, is a good reminder that natural disasters are still a threat in a post 9/11 world.

We should not overlook their potential to damage homes, destroy personal property and cause injury and death.

But even with two named storms already this season, it's not too late for residents of hurricane-prone states- even those inland - to prepare for what may lay ahead.

With that in mind, FEMA and the Department of Homeland Security are urging residents to remember that, hurricane preparations should entail more than just attention to hurricane winds. While winds are the most dramatic of a hurricane's devastating properties, it is actually heavy rains that, have brought the most damage in recent years. In Tropical Storm Allison, for example, there were no reports of roofs blown off or photos of palm trees shredded by the wind.

But as much as 36 inches fell in some parts of Texas and more than 25 inches fell in some parishes in Louisiana. Then the storm that would not end sent torrential rain to Mississippi and Florida, and to states along the Atlantic.

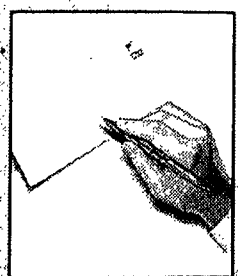

Hurricane Floyd, years before Allison, did the same thing - 13 states were inundated with daunting floods that stole from residents all they'd worked for their whole lives. Only when residents are as ready for the water as they are for the wind can there be true damage prevention.

FEMA, now part of the Department of Homeland Security, remains ready to help communities hit by this year's storms recover. However, we believe strongly that hurricane preparedness and risk reduction will lessen the necessity of FEMA assistance.

What does FEMA recommend for residents at risk for hurricanes? Four things:

- Know how to stay safe during a hurricane. Discuss with your family what to do should a hurricane come ashore and where you might go - to a shelter, a hotel or to stay with friends.

Make sure that children know to stay inside even when the winds die down - the eye may just be passing over and the storm will shortly resume. Also, review your evacuation routes and plan a contingency route, and NEVER drive through high water. As little as six inches of water can sweep a car away. Think ahead about what to do with pets, too, since they should not be left behind.

- Determine your risk. If you live on the coast or in a vulnerable area, you may already know you're at risk for wind and/or water. But if you're inland, you may think you're safe.

You may not be. Many of those communities flooded by Hurricane Floyd in 1999 were inland, too. Find out if you're in a flood plain or flood-vulnerable area by resolutions that moved the bond issue along. He'd suggested council consider cutting the scope of resurfacing in half, and getting some financial help from the county. "You cannot borrow your way out of debt," Seal said.

And Seal questioned whether borrowing money for capital improvements puts the city in a "bad position" as the city makes a push to triple its boundaries through annexation.

Mayor Eddie Favre has made repeated presentations to council concerning the need for a street resurfacing program and the financing for it. With interest rates low — and the city coffers strapped — now's the time to proceed with the general obligation bond, Favre has told council.

He said the city faces huge increases in operating expenses, including a 15 percent hike in health insurance costs. Keeping the tax levy at a mere 5 mills for years, the city's reserves have been increasingly squeezed, officials say.

Last year, council bumped the rate up to 10.5 mills. But Favre said that increase probably was two or three years later than it should have been.

Officials say that trimming costs to keep the tax rate low meant cutbacks on some routine maintenance, such as street resurfacing. That's left some 40 streets in the city in sad shape, many riddled with potholes.

Officials expect to finalize the bond transaction at its July 22 meeting, opening bids from prospective lenders.

On the subject of annexation, meanwhile, Favre said the additional taxes that new residents of the city would have to pay would be more than offset by the reductions they'll see in homeowners' insurance premiums. That's because the city has a Class 5 fire rating. Much of the unincorporated area at issue is under a Class 9 or 10 rating, Favre said.

The mayor said he plans on meeting with all the homeowners' associations and volunteer fire departments that he can to outline the facts on annexation and field questions. "Hopefully, we'll show that it's going to be a win-win situation," said Favre.

A detailed report on the impacts of the proposed annexation is expected to be finalized within 45 days, council was told Tuesday night, by consultants. The city has adopted an annexation ordinance that encompasses a vast area between Highway 603, the Jourdan River and Interstate 10.

But the city has to win Chancery Court approval of the annexation, and may face a legal challenge there that will take up to two years to resolve.

contacting your local emergency management office, insurance agent or by going to the FEMA web site, www.fema.gov.

• Take action to reduce potential water damage. Consider obtaining flood insurance, raising utilities or appliances, especially in a basement, to higher ground, and, if your risk is especially severe, taking more drastic action. Elevating homes has saved many residents from hurricane flooding.

• Keep out the wind. If you can keep your roof on, your windows intact and your garage door in place, you stand a good chance of keeping your home standing. Hurricane straps and hurricane shutters are cost-effective measures. Consult a building contractor, home improvement store or the FEMA Web site for specifics.

Above all, ask yourself — are my family and my community ready for a hurricane? If the answer is no, do something about it now. You can find more information about hurricanes and preparing your family and community by reviewing FEMA's "Are You Ready?" guide, available on www.fema.gov.

Minor

ably within a protective coat of armor thrown around the Eubanks children to insulate them from some harsh realities of the system.

Many of those realities he would discover when he later began poring over the files of the State Sovereignty Commission.

I got to know Ralph Eubanks through Father Frank Cosgrove, my pastor at St. Francis of Assisi Catholic church, and who as Catholic chaplain at Ole Miss in the 1970s converted Ralph to Catholicism.

Eubanks had hesitated coming to Jackson to read the pages or documents in the then-opened Sovereignty Commission files for fear it might destroy his euphoric feeling he held for his Mississippi roots.

Finally, in 1999 he came and spent long hours viewing the files held at the Mississippi Archives and History building, seeking any clue as to why the names of both his mother and father showed up in the commission website index.

He discovered a lot more than what he had essentially started out to find when he spent days digging deeper into the files, inserting dozens of names and places he somehow associated with his growing-up years in Covington County.

His mother, Lucille, light-skinned as is Ralph, had landed in the files after the commission director had ordered his staff to gather the names of all black teachers in Covington and surrounding counties in 1960.

Somehow, the fact that her father had been a white man who dared to marry Lucille's African-American mother in Alabama in 1915 somehow escaped the Sovereignty Commission's scrutiny. Interestingly, Eubanks found one laughable instance in the files where a commission investigator was sent to examine the toes of a new-born baby to determine the infant's race.

He was startled to find that the Superintendent of Covington County schools in those 1960s was a prominent member of the White Knights of the Ku Klux Klan. And that the somewhat amiable county sheriff had black informants working for him to report any "suspicious" conduct that the county's black citizens might agitate for integration.

Eubanks sought out former School Superintendent Denson Lott to gently confront him on being a Klansman back in the 1960s and having turned in Eubanks' mother's name to the Sovereignty Commission.

Lott was apologetic about what he had done, and then gave a rather amazing rationale for having gotten into the White Knights: He contended that the Klan was thinking about burning down any school that was integrated, and his Klan association was the best way to insure against that happening.

The name of Eubanks' father got into the commission files in much the same way as his wife, via a broad commission move to list all black agricultural agents statewide, no matter that they had given any hint of being linked to any desegregationist cause or activity.

Together with his two sisters, Eubanks was in the initial group of black kids to enroll in the previously all-white Mt. Olive school after the U.S. Supreme court's historic Alexander decision ordered 33 Mississippi school districts in January, 1970 to racially consolidate their schools at every level.

Ralph, who was 12 and in 8th grade, found himself in the middle school, used as a sort of "experiment" of being placed alone in a class with white students. Other children who came over from the former Lincoln black-only school were put into classes without any whites, amounting to segregated classes within the now-integrated school.

Though several of his new white teachers saw that Eubanks was obviously a very bright student, at least one who remained adamantly opposed to integration, early-on became his nemesis and remained so until Ralph graduated from Mt. Olive High with honors.

(One teacher, Eubanks remembers having during his school days, was the mother of celebrated Tennessee Titan quarterback Steve McNair, one of the star products of racially-integrated athletics in Mt. Olive.)

Unlike many other middle class blacks in the 1960s and even later, Eubanks' parents, while no activists in the civil rights movement, quietly supported it.

They proudly carried their NAACP membership cards, even when it was risky to be known as a member, especially being public employees.

His curiosity about the Sovereignty Commission led Eubanks to search out one of the few living commission members from 1964-68, Horace Harned of Starkville. As I had warned him in advance, Eubanks found Harned, a onetime state senator, as unconstructed as ever, still opposed to opening the files and in favor of the commission's use of paid informants.

By the time Eubanks got to Ole Miss to major in English literature and psychology, his father had gone on to become a regional director for the Farmers' Home Administration based in Houston, MS, but would not live to see his son graduate, and become a graduate student at the University of Michigan.

However, Eubanks had long ago made the decision: He was leaving Mt. Olive and Mississippi behind, and would never return to live there. But he found, as he poignantly admits in his "Ever is a Long Time," distance later only drew him closer once again to his Mississippi roots.

Happy Birthday

Ashley Ruth Holden
July 10, 1984 - February 21, 2003

Her Journey Has Just Begun

Don't think of her as gone away.
Her journey has just begun.
Life holds so many facets,
this earth is only one.

Just think of her as resting from the sorrows and the tears, in a place of warmth and comfort where there are no days and years.

Think of how she must be wishing that we could know today, how nothing but our sadness can really pass away.

And think of her as living in the hearts of those she touched for nothing loved is ever lost
'and she was loved so much.

Loved and Missed, by family and friends!

In Loving Memory

Claude C. Lawless (Papa)
Sept. 20, 1922 - July 11, 1999

Four years ago the Lord looked around His garden, and found an empty place. It broke our hearts to lose you, but you didn't go alone. A part of us went with you the day the Lord took you home.

*We still think of you each day and miss you so much.
Sadly missed by your family* areas we covered were wide-spread and that's one of the reasons 'Operation Bus-Em' lasted most of the morning."

There were so many suspects, Garber said, officers had to procure a bus to transport them all back to the Hancock County Justice Facility, giving the operation its name.

Malley, heading up one of the three teams Tuesday, said that the use, production and sale of crack and crystal meth have grown exponentially over the past couple of years, with addicts turning to making and selling the stuff just to feed their own habits. And, he said, the problem seems to be claiming entire neighborhoods. Four of the 32 arrests made Tuesday morning took place on one street.

In a particularly bad neighborhood, one of the officers pointed to house after house, saying, "We made buys there. We made buys there. We made buys there. ... I bet you if you asked me to, we could buy drugs at any house here."

While no officers were injured Tuesday, they did have several anxious moments.

In Lakeshore, they were attacked by two pit bull dogs and in Pearlington, officers were attacked by another dog.

Capt. Matt Karl, Narcotic Division director said, "You know, even with crack cocaine the leading drug violation, marijuana is still out there too."

Of the suspects arrested was a 16-year-old, accused of selling narcotics at his own high school.

Those listed as arrested are charged with sale of a controlled substance, or else as indicated:

The names of two arrested were not even listed on the roundup list, Karl said.

Karl said, "While we were in the Catahoula Community around 4:30 a.m., Alex Robinson was sitting and next to him we noted several pieces of rock wrapped in plastic. While we were waiting a test kit, he was placed in a van, he then kicked out one of the windows. While at the booking station, he took his clothes off and exposed himself."

"As it turned out, the items tested negative and if Robinson had not acted up while we were checking, he would have not been arrested."

Also Richard Mayne was arrested during the roundup due to a prior warrant on charges of grand larceny and attempt of court.

"You know, citizen input has to be credited with their help," Karl said. "Their information on drug activities in their neighborhoods helps."

Audit -- Southern Regional

The report specifically mentions $42,958 in payments made to consulting engineer Gary Beard for services concerning a problem in Edward's Bayou. The eight submitted invoices included no explanation of services or dates, but only the number of hours being billed by staff position were indicated, the report says. The work was approved by the board and members responded by saying that proper documentation was in their files and available for review.

Other instances question costs for equipment and installation of equipment totaling about $9,000 by the consulting engineer, again without proper documentation or a clear indication that it had been approved prior to installation. The board responded that the cost of the equipment did not necessitate a bid process and that it was notified of and approved the transaction.

Two instances of payments of $17,000 and $25,000 to the district's regular engineer Duke Levy are questioned because they appear to have been made with out a proper contract. The board responded that Levy signed a contract with the district in 1993 and that the contract was still applicable.

During the audit year the district did not have an administrator, but hired United Industries on a four-to-six week interim basis to manage operations, the report said. No administration was hired until November 2001, when former United employee Bill Glover was hired.

The auditors' opinion is, however, that because the consult engineering firm was still being paid, that this constituted a management relationship with the firm. Because the consultant/contractor Gary Beard is also the owner and president of United, the auditors opinion is that this would be considered a related-party transaction. During that time, United was paid $108,257 and Beard was paid $119,500 for services rendered. Beard also provided computer services in the amount of $4,875 to the district in the audit year.

Board members responded that they were aware of a relationship between the two parties, but that much of the work performed by Beard was performed away from the district's facility, as it pertained to future projects and funding for those projects.

The report went on to question excessive costs in relation to composting equipment purchased through contractor Maxe Foote. Delivery charges totaling $23,730 to bring the equipment from Baton Rouge to Waveland was one of the specific charges mentioned. Also, the total cost for the equipment - $193,242 - was the exact amount budgeted in the construction budget, said the report.

The board responded by saying that it relied upon the approval and recommendations of professionals such as the district engineer, contractor and regulating agency MDEQ, which must approve transactions before funding is disbursed.

Two issues of noncompliance were mentioned, one in regard to the Davis Bacon Act which requires that the entity obtain copies of certified payrolls for work on construction contracts financed by federal assistance funds and retain them on file, which the district did not do. The other issue referred to noncompliance with allowable costs - some of which were discussed earlier.

Compliance with the requirements of laws, regulations, contracts and grants applicable to its major federal program is the responsibility of the Southern Regional management, the report said. Other than issues of non-compliance mentioned in the audit report Southern Regional was found to comply in all material respects with those requirements. The audit report does not provide a legal determination on Southern Regional's compliance with those requirements.

The report cites lack of appropriate management oversight as a condition possible for bringing about the problems. Translation: No one was watching the shop, or at least not closely enough. The district will now be required to come up with a clear plan for improvement and is in the process of doing so. The plan will be outlined in the 2002 audit.

After graduation she wandered around the south creating beautiful architectural pieces, however she knew she had found home when she visited the charming town of Bay St. Louis.

Here, Jenise has expanded her line and gone into the wholesale end of the craft business, but her true loves have not changed - creating new pieces, talking to her retail customers and showing her goods at craft fairs and festivals.

Peoples Bank will sponsor the music of "Silver City" on Beach Boulevard.

'Upwardly Mobile Homes' on display for Second Saturday at Serenity Gallery

A reception at Serenity Gallery in Bay St. Louis will mark the opening of an exhibition of the work of artist Bill Myers.

Mr. Myers, who lives in Ocean Springs, has shown extensively throughout the U.S. He is currently featured in the exhibition "Flat Art" at the Lois Lambert Gallery in Los Angeles.

He has had many one and two man exhibits including Nicholls State University in Louisiana, the University of West Florida in Pensacola, and Delta State University in Cleveland, Miss.

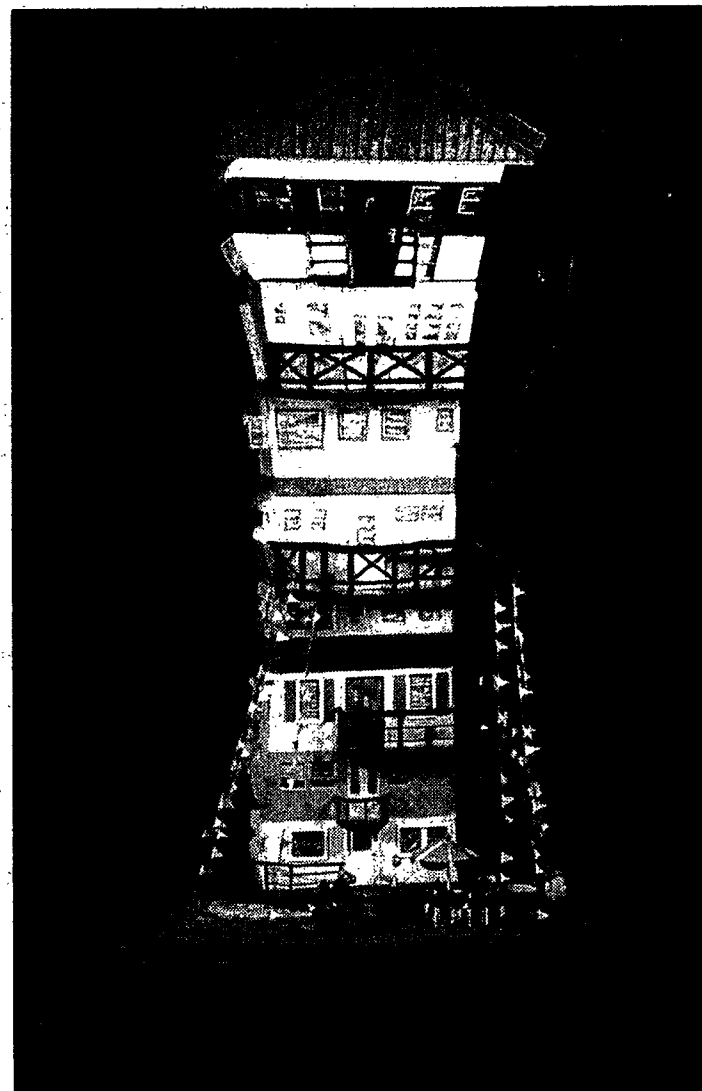

He has been a part of numerous juried shows such as "Art with a Southern Drawl" in Mobile, "Qull & Kilm" at Biloxi's Ohr-O'Keefe Museum, and taking the Best of Show Award at "Cross Currents" Walter Anderson Museum's National juried exhibit. While living in Denver, Mr. Myers served as artist in residence with the Colorado Council for the Arts. He has taught in Louisiana and Mississippi as well. Myers work often takes on controversial subjects such as race, religion, and politics with a deeply questioning eye. The results are multi-layered in both materials and meanings.

Though the subjects are often serious, Mr. Myers deals with them with a sense of humor and irony.

That humor is illustrated in a piece such as "Upwardly Mobile Homes" which consist of eight colorful house trailers stacked to form a condo building complete with balconies, patio furniture, and hot tub. The materials used vary from the more traditional of clay paint, and canvas to a crow made of soda cans and X rays.

The reception at Serenity Gallery, 126 Main Street is a part of Bay St. Louis' "Second Saturday Art Walk" on July 12 from 5-8 p.m. The exhibit of Myers work will remain on display until August 11.

"Upwardly Mobile Homes" will be on display at Serenity Gallery during Second Saturday on July 12.

Loft Studios to celebrate sixth anniversary

Loft Studios first opened its doors in December of 1997 on Gex St. behind Quarter Moon. Initially it was a frame shop - the brain child of Ellis Anderson who owns Quarter Moon.

Anderson invited Donna Davenport to bring her framing to the Bay. Davenport had been framing out of her home for herself and other artists and was working part-time as a registered nurse.

The business began in one small room. Customers would choose mouldings, mats and designs right on the work bench. It was very crowded so by the next year Loft Studios expanded to include two rooms, one of which became a studio-gallery where artist Paula Leoni painted and hung her works.

Davenport formed an idea of a working studio/gallery and frame shop where people could come by at any given time and meet the artist as a work was being created. Several other artists were invited to join the studio and it quickly out-grew the location on Gex St.

The business moved to 144 Main St. where it is located today. Davenport state that as in any area of life the growth of Loft Studios is a process. Display area has been added slowly, room by room to accommodate a growing number of artists.

Today the studio boasts 30 artisans who create pottery, metal sculpture, photography, stained glass, watercolor, oils, acrylics, hand-made paper, primitives, etchings, serigraphs, mixed-media and jewelry. It provides state-of-the-art custom framing and even has exotic plants for sale on the new deck. Hours are Tuesday through Saturday 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Appointments are encouraged for custom framing. The gallery is a proud sponsor of Second Saturday ArtWalk and is open for this event.

Print making, ceramics highlighted at Quarter Moon

Quarter Moon Gallery showcases three regional artists working in printmaking and ceramics during July's Second Saturday Artwalk in Bay St. Louis. A reception for the artists' newest work will be held 5-8 p.m. Saturday, July 12.

Pamela Conaway Caruso, a printmaker, introduces a series of Gulf Coast images entitled "Engulfed on Paper." Carole and Marshall Gottsegen present a selection of wood-fired pottery.

While an illustrator for Tulane University's Natural History museum, Caruso produced scientifically accurate pen and ink illustrations of the fishes of Lake Pontchartrain. In the 1980s, some of them became part of

The Smithsonian Institution's Traveling Exhibition Service. The marine theme also appears in her current monographs and lithography-style impressions.

Caruso holds a BS in advertising design. When she became disillusioned with computer-generated art, she turned to printmaking, she said. A non-academic "refresher" class at the New Orleans School of Glassworks and Printmaking Studio on New Orleans lead her to the new field.

She teaches there now, offering printmaking demonstrations and classes and workshops in the drypoint intaglio and botanical monograph techniques.

Nature is a constant theme in her work, and she uses a variety of printmaking techniques. Caruso's personal interests include photograph, gardening, and dogs.

The Gottsegens, a husband and wife team, continue their line of functional forms. An orthodontist by profession, Marshall Gottsegen throws the pieces white Carole Gottsegen, a retired social worker, decorates the vessel, often with carved patterns.

A keen interest in alternative firing techniques lead the couple to wood firing, a process that creates a rougher look than pieces fired by more conventional means. Most ceramic glasses today are fired in electric kilns, which achieve more refined finishes.

The stoneware pieces that the Gottsegens are showing in July were fired with wood at about 2300 degrees Fahrenheit, creating the earthier look. Flying ash in the kiln creates unusual, rustic effects when it settles on the pieces and melts.

The process can cause unpredictable patterns even in unglazed areas, they said.

The Gottsegens and Caruso will be available to discuss their work at the reception, which includes live music and refreshments. The exhibits run through August 6. Quarter Moon Gallery is located in Old Town, 146 Main Street, next to the courthouse in Bay St. Louis.

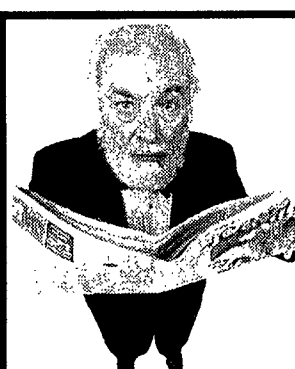

For further information, contact Pat Saik, gallery manager at 228-467-7279.

A retired scientist will present information on the ORIGIN OF RELIGIONS and the modern proof that it has nothing to do with the fear of death.

Parents ask Dr. Richard Kutner, child and adolescent psychiatrist—

"Is there really such a thing as a bad child?"

I tell parents "no," but many children do make bad decisions, based on things they can't control. Medical conditions, like hyperactivity, depression, and anxiety...stress in their environment...or expectations beyond their age or ability...contribute to poor choices and inappropriate behavior. Left untreated, these kids may be labeled as "being bad." Today, the family schedule is packed...free time is rare, and a lot is expected of children, sometimes unfairly. When kids can't cope, we see more problems. We'd like to help you; if you want more information, call us now or anytime. There's always a counselor standing by to talk with you.

Southern Gaming Summit fosters economic growth throughout region

The 10th Annual Southern Gaming Summit broke all previous attendance records, attracting more than 5,000 gaming executives and vendors to Biloxi May 7-8.

But the event's success can best be measured in the long-term economic impact it will have on the entire Gulf region, according to two recent analyses.

The Harrison County Development Commission reports that its staff identified at least 30 prospective new gaming suppliers for the Gulf Coast region from among the more than 200 exhibitors at this year's sold-out expo. These prospects include manufacturers of gaming devices, signage, beverage carts, furniture, data imaging and processing services.

A Mississippi Institutions of Higher Learning economic impact analysis stated that Southern Gaming Summit 2003 generated more than $5.7 million in organization and participant expenditures, more than $2 million in labor income, $141,235 in local sales taxes, and $440,537 in state General Fund revenue.

Southern Gaming Summit 2003 also generated or sustained a total of 103 jobs in Harrison County, the analysis concluded.

"Southern Gaming Summit provides an excellent forum for conducting business and networking among local and national gaming executives and vendors," said Gulf Coast Gaming Association Executive Director Beverly Martin. "And we pride ourselves in providing a more relaxed business environment for our visitors, which keeps them coming back year after year."

In its 10 years, Southern Gaming Summit has grown from a primarily local event into the largest and most successful gaming trade show and conference held outside of Las Vegas. Of this year's more than 5,000 attendees, slightly more than half came from outside of Mississippi, from 43 U.S. states and several Canadian provinces. For the second consecutive year, the 2003 expo sold out, attracting more than 200 vendors from across North America.

The 2004 expo floor will expand by about 20 booths, filling the Gulf Coast Convention Center to capacity. With the event more than 10 months away, more than 80 percent of the booths have already been reserved.

The Summit is produced by Ascend Media Gaming Group, the Gulf Coast Gaming Association and its members: Beau Rivage

State's major crops drenched by rain

By Keryn Page
MSU
Communications

Tropical Storm Bill and a very wet June mean the state's major row crops stayed waterlogged, but producers aren't ready to call the season a wash.

The southern and eastern parts of the state saw most of the rainfall in June, but the northern and western crops didn't escape the soaking, averaging as much as 14 percent more than the normal amount of rainfall in some areas. Central and east-central crops received double the normal amount in June.

"In June, we had rain 13 days in the east-central part of the state, and the normal for that area is 8.5 days. That's nearly 50 percent more rain days than normal," said state climatologist Charles Wax, a professor in Mississippi State University's geosciences department. "The Coast has been the wettest by far with about 21 days of rain in the month of June."

MSU Extension specialists in each of the major commodity crops agree the excessive rainfall and overcast conditions have caused problems, but to varying degrees depending on the crop. The cotton crop probably suffered the most from the saturated conditions, which delayed planting and field work, and caused nonuniform crops and underdeveloped root systems.

"Cotton does not tolerate wet conditions very well. Some crops have been lost and some had to be replanted," said Will McCarty, Extension cotton specialist.

"But a more serious problem is that cotton has not been able to develop a very good root system," McCarty said. "If the weather suddenly turns hot and dry, our dryland cotton could have difficulties."

More rain and clouds would also be bad for the crop, further complicating field work and damaging cotton development. Despite the obstacles, McCarty said the state does have 44 some pretty cotton.

The news for the corn crop is slightly better but not particularly good. Saturated conditions stunted growth, reduced acreage and caused nitrogen fertilizer loss.

"Saturated soil stunted corn growth and caused substantial nitrogen loss, contributing to the small, yellow-colored corn plants in north Mississippi," said Extension corn specialist Eric Larson. He said the intended acreage for corn was 600,000, but only about 500,000 acres were planted because of rainfall during March and April.

The good news is that corn's water needs peak during early July, so rainfall will generally benefit corn, unless soils remain saturated.

Although the corn yield potential is not determined until the end of July, Larson said northern areas will probably see poor yields as a result of excessive May and June rain.

"The corn crop in areas that have not experienced excessive rainfall looks very good," he added.

Mississippi's rice crop has not seen much damage from the rain, and for the most part the crop is in good condition. The challenge has been getting the soil to dry out so fertilizer can be applied to the later-planted rice.

"We like to put pre-flood fertilizer on dry soil," said Joe Street, Extension rice specialist at the Delta Research and Extension Center in Stoneville. "But rain won't hurt much once rice is flooded, and it may actually be beneficial because growers won't have to pump as much water to the crops. However, extended periods of rain may increase disease problems."

Soybean development has not been harmed greatly by the excessive rain, but the frequent overcast weather that goes along with it is ideal for disease.

"We've actually had good, Midwest-type weather -- not really a normal Southern summer thus far," said Extension soybean specialist Alan Blaine. "But we need a break from showers so we can get in the fields and finish planting."

The climatologist said while there is no great indication of more rain, "what happens in the next two weeks is anybody's guess."

Isle of Capri's board elected Hinkley in January to fill the positions.

19th annual Sportsman Club's Kids Fishing Rodeo

BY ELLIS C. CUEVAS
Publisher Emeritus

The 19th annual Gulf Coast Sportsman Club Kids Fishing Rodeo is scheduled for Saturday, July 26, 8 a.m. to 4 p.m.

The rodeo is open to boys and girls ages 13 and under, according to Claude Garcia, chairman.

The rodeo headquarters will be at Pavilion No. 1 at Buccaneer State Park, Beach Boulevard, Waveland.

Registration is free, and forms will be available at Buccaneer State Park Pavilion No. 1 beginning at 8 a.m. on rodeo day, Garcia said.

In the freshwater division, prizes will be awarded for the largest green trout (bass) and perch.

Prizes will be awarded in the saltwater division for the largest speckled trout, redfish, white trout, flounder, croaker, ground mullet and largest fish.

A king fisherman and queen fisherette will be selected from ages 8-13.

"The rodeo officials will not be responsible for undersized fish," warned Sam Perniciaro, rodeo co-chairman.

"No undersized fish will be accepted, and parents are urged to have their children comply with state and federal regulations (speckled trout, flounder and redfish)," said Perniciaro.

He also emphasized no catfish or stingrays will be accepted.

"This is for the safety of the children participating," Garcia said.

There will be a special crab division for ages six and under.

All fish must be caught by the participants on the day of the rodeo in any waters in the area from piers, shoreline, boats or wading.

Sportsman's Club members will handle the scales, and the weighmaster's decisions are final.

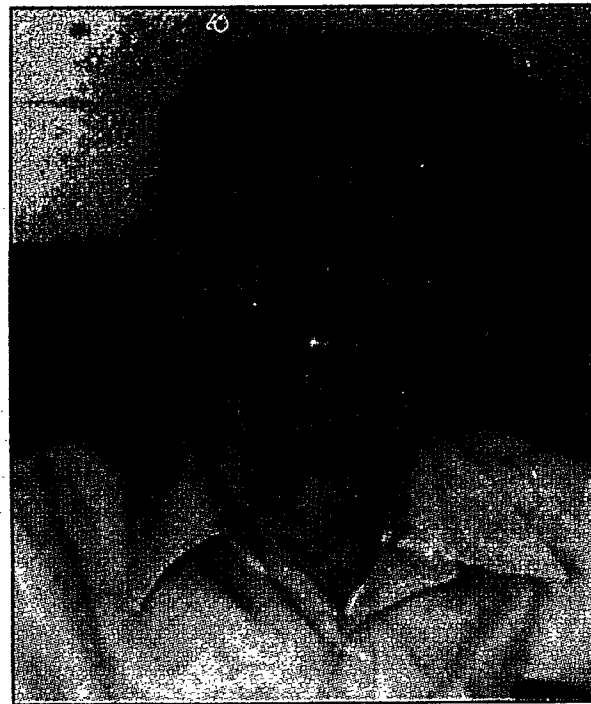

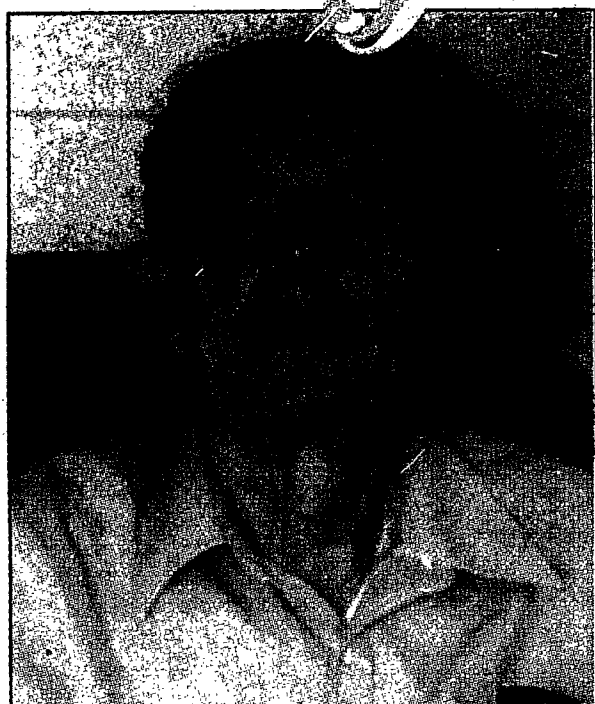

Each participant will also receive a free hot dog and coke, Garcia said.

Trophies will be given for first, second and third place in each category, and drawings will be held for a large number of prizes.

Many of the prizes for the rodeo have been donated to the Sportsman's Club by local merchants.

Garcia said if any merchants are interested in making a donation or contribution, they may contact him at 467-0870, or Perniciaro at 467-5324.

The Life of David McDonald

Echo staff photos by Bennie Shallbetter

A World War II hero, beloved husband and father, revered local business man and respected 30 year member of the Hancock County Port and Harbor Commission, 80 plus year old David McDonald has had a life that would make anyone smile.

In the early part of 1945 a young David McDonald waited just outside of Berlin with his Army Division, the 84th Infantry.

McDonald, a mine expert, had seen plenty of action with the division during the winter where they had spent months in the northern part of Belgium, Holland and Germany called the Bulge. They had been sent there just after D-day.

After running German troops out of the area the division started moving into the Rhine River Valley to Berlin, one of the last major holdouts for German troops in the European theater. The men awaited further orders to move into the city. Word would come by runner because no radio communications could be used in the area.

"I was thinking we would all be killed in Berlin," said McDonald. "Fighting in the big cities was a dangerous affair."

That night the runner came, but with unexpected news — great news. The men were told that this was the end of the war in Europe for them. The big shots had decided that they were going to let the Russians take Berlin, McDonald said.

"I'll tell you, that was the greatest message I ever heard," he said. "If I live to be 100, I'll never forget it."

The Russians took the city and everything in their path, he said, basically ending the war on the European front, War II was over.

For his service in the United States Army Second Lt. David McDonald received the Bronze Star for his resourcefulness, courage, and exemplary action in capturing 60 Germans as prisoners.

After the war he joined his wife, Lucy, and spent the rest of his service time traveling around Southern Mississippi speaking to other young men about the benefits of joining the service.

He and Lucy had been married on July 17, 1943 near the base where he was stationed in Anniston, Alabama. She and her family traveled there from her home town of Wiggins for the ceremony. Next week, the couple will celebrate their 60th wedding anniversary with their two children, many grandchildren and two great grandchildren.

When he was discharged, around 1947, he and his bride settled in his home town of Bay St. Louis and McDonald did what any good son would do, he began working in the family business, W. A. McDonald and Sons Lumber.

The business was started by his grandfather in 1903 but of course the war still raged on in the Pacific. No one knew what was about to occur, he said.

McDonald was sent home almost immediately on leave to recover for his next tour of duty, as a mine expert on the beaches and harbors of Japan. Policy required that 90 days pass before he could be sent to another theater, he said.

With about one month left before he would be deployed to the Pacific, the unthinkable occurred. An atomic bomb was dropped on Japan and World

Magilla Perilla is instantly famous

The bold, vibrant colors of the Magilla Perilla will add a tropical flair to any style garden.

Wherever I've gone this summer -- the Atlanta Botanical Garden, Park Seed Trials in South Carolina, even the landscape at North Park Mall in Jackson -- the Magilla Perilla has performed wonderfully.

Magilla Perilla became famous before gardeners even got a chance to try it. It is the plant that has shoppers everywhere counting the days until it is available at local garden centers.

With a name like that, even I could have marketed it. It may be the name that has captured the gardener's imagination now, but upon growing Magilla, everyone will tout its exotic beauty and durability.

Magilla Perilla is one of those selections that offers today's hurried gardeners easy-to-grow, environmentally friendly plants that aesthetically enhance the home landscape.

The perilla is not very well-known. A few gardeners may be familiar with the old-fashioned Perilla frutescens, which almost looks like a small basil and is used as such, but Magilla is different.

Magilla easily reaches 24 inches tall and has rounded foliage displaying brilliant splashes of hot pink, deep plum and green. These colors develop best in sun or bright, filtered light.

You could not ask for a better plant to get your children or grandchildren involved in the fun of gardening. They will love the funny, cartoon-sounding name and the vibrant colors. They will find it easy to grow as the center of a large, mixed container on the porch, patio or deck.

In the landscape, Magilla Perilla performs best in fertile, well-drained soil. If your soil is tight or heavy, amend with 3 to 4 inches of organic matter like compost or humus. Grow three to five plants spaced 14 to 16 inches apart for a breathtakingly beautiful display.

Use in combination with pink or magenta shades of Cooler Periwinkles for a look that will be as colorful and tropical as Carnival in Rio.

In fact, the vibrant, tropical colors of the Magilla make them ideal as understory plantings to large bananas, upright elephant ears or pink cannas. Be bold and also use Magilla with ornamental grasses. The most obvious and still continues today. The original business was stock feed. His father also operated a planter mill under the name C. C. McDonald.

"The shavings from the mill were piled up in an enormous pile where the St. Stanislaus football field is now and the store was across the street," said McDonald.

He remained with the family business until 1958 when he started his own flooring business, David McDonald Inc.

The business installed flooring of all kinds from New Orleans to Gulfport. The new concrete bridge across the Bay had just been finished about four years before, changing the face of the city he had lived in all his life.

As a child McDonald remembers having to take the ferry across the bay from the wharf at the end of deMontluzin Avenue where you would drive your car on board for a trip to Henderson Point.

Captain Dracket ran the ferry and you'd better not be late, he said, or you were in for a long drive around the Bay to get back home. On the gravel roads it could take a while.

In 1928 the first wooden bridge was built at the foot of Ulman Ave., he said, where the Jimmy Rutherford Pier now stands. Business was brisk in the area with praline stands and a hotel (that was later the Hotel Reed nursing home.) The focus of activity changed again in 1954 with the new bridge.

McDonald's company was successful and life continued on in a been plotting to gain a port for the county. An engineering firm was hired to survey the county and pick the most likely area for the port. An area in the west county that had once been a cotton plantation owned by the Claiborne

McDonald said. Support for the port increased and the Commission came into being in 1968. In 1974, at the request of Supervisor James Travirca, who wanted more input from local businessmen, McDonald joined the Commission.

"Though it had nothing to do with me coming on board," McDonald said. "It was about this time that things at the port began to pick up."

It was 1976 and Georgian Jimmy Carter was president. He wanted to secure the port of King's Bay as a Navy port to bring jobs to his native state. And the location was perfect for such an operation, said McDonald. A large company, Atlas Powder, located at the port, was going to have to move to a new location.

As luck would have it, a Mississippi ship captain and a captain from an Atlas Powder ship met at a port in Central America about this time.

The Mississippi captain told Atlas' captain about a new port opening in Hancock County. The commissioners received a call from the company and McDonald and Wilson Webre flew to Georgia.

The deal was closed in 15 days. Atlas moved to Hancock County and the Port Bienville was on its way.

predictable manner for the family. He couldn't know that an important segment of his life was just around the corner and about to begin, a 30 year career as a member of the Hancock County Port and Harbor Commission. He has served as president for the past ten years.

In 1968 the Hancock County Board of Supervisors had long family was the chosen spot. A channel was to be cut through to the Pearl River, allowing ocean going vessels access to the county for the first time.

It was settled and work began to create the port, attracting the attention of area businessmen Naughton Haas and Dr. Andy Martinolich, as well as Hancock Bank executive Leo Seal, companion would be purple fountain grass.

Keep Magilla watered and mulched during the growing season. Feed with a light application of a slow-release, balanced fertilizer a month after planting and again in mid-summer.

Many gardeners first think Magilla Perilla is a coleus. It is in the same family and does have some of the same cultural requirements. For instance, a good pinching in mid- or late-summer, if needed, will keep the plant bushy.

Sure, we will keep growing the old "tried-and-true" favorites, but you have to admit, it is fun to garden today because of the new and unusual plants like this one that keep popping up.

Magilla Perilla has been available in very good numbers for a brand-new plant. If your garden center is out, don't fret. Get it next year or ask if they will have a new crop for late summer or early-fall.

Spotlight On Dining 2003

Attention Restaurant Owners...

Advertising is an investment in the success of your restaurant. Every restaurant has competition, either within the town, or nearby city. Your potential customers are being courted by your competitors. If you do not invite those customers to do business with you, they are likely to forget you and dine elsewhere. It is not uncommon for consumers to switch their dining habits from one restaurant to another. Advertising helps to keep old customers and equally as important, make new ones.

Our community is constantly growing which means that potential customers are moving into the market area all the time. Advertising gives these newcomers a reason to visit your restaurant.

Most businesses budget for their advertising expenses just as they do for other necessities such as rent, phones, etc. Smart business people realize that advertising is imperative to keep their business growing.

Another reason to advertise is that advertising is news! You profit by telling our readers what is new in your restaurant. Through advertising, you can let a wide audience know what specials you are offering, perhaps what entertainment you may have and the character of your restaurant.

If you have something to sell, then you have something to advertise. When you have nothing to advertise, you are out of business. Advertising is designed to build your business and works best when it is repeated regularly. Consistent advertising pays off!

Now that you know some of the reasons to advertise, you're probably wondering how you can advertise most effectively. Surveys show that ads in local newspapers have more impact than in any other medium. The Sea Coast Echo goes into the majority of the homes in Hancock County. The Sea Coast Echo is full of interesting reading, it is a part of our community. People like to read about people and The Sea Coast Echo is full of pictures and stories about local people. The most important reason to advertise in The Sea Coast Echo is that our readers are your customers.

If you're looking for the best advertising value for your money, then you should contact the advertising department at The Sea Coast Echo. One of our advertising representatives will be happy to discuss the many advertising options offered by The Sea Coast Echo. For more information you may call 467-5474, Monday through Friday 8am to 5pm, or stop by our office at 124 Court Street, Bay St. Louis.

Since 1892, The Sea Coast Echo is proud to be a part of your community.

Mississippi's National Wildlife Refuges need you

BY JAMES L. CUMMINS

The National Wildlife Refuge System in Mississippi has 13 NWRs comprising 220,000 acres. The first NWR in the state was the Yazoo NWR; it was established in 1936. The refuge is located 25 miles south of Greenville and encompasses 13,000 acres. The area primarily contains bottomland hardwoods. The next NWR to be established was Noxubee NWR located south of Starkville. It contains 48,000 acres of bottomland and upland habitats.

In 1975, the Mississippi Sandhill Crane NWR and Hillside NWR were established. The Mississippi Sandhill Crane NWR, located north of Gautier, is comprised of 19,000 acres. The area was established to protect the endangered Mississippi sandhill crane. Hillside NWR encompasses 15,000 acres and is located north of Yazoo City.

Morgan Break NWR, located in west central Mississippi, was established in 1977 and encompasses 7,400 acres. The area was established to protect bottomland hardwoods. In 1978, Panther Swamp NWR, which is comprised of 38,500 acres of mature bottomland hardwoods, was established.

Matthews Brake NWR was established in 1980 and encompasses approximately 2,418 acres. It is located 5 miles west of Sidon. In 1981, Bogue Chitto NWR was established and encompasses 37,500 acres in Louisiana and Mississippi and is located north of Slidell, Louisiana.

There have been additions to the NWR System in the past few years. Dahomey, Tallahatchie, St. Catherine Creek, Grand Bay and Coldwater River NWRs are all new additions to the state NWR System. Dahomey NWR, located south of Cleveland, was established from an original tract of 9,269 acres. The Tallahatchie NWR is found nine miles west of Holcomb and encompasses 4,083 acres. St. Catherine Creek NWR, located south of Natchez, contains 26,000 acres of cypress swamps and hardwoods. Grand Bay NWR is located east of Pascagoula and contains lands both in Mississippi and Alabama and with all land acquisitions complete, will encompass approximately 32,000 acres. The last of the Mississippi NWRs is Coldwater River. Coldwater River NWR was established in 2000 and is located south of the town of Crowder and encompasses 2,069 acres.

From its humble beginnings, through the early turbulent years, the NWR System has shown to be very successful. President Theodore Roosevelt could not have possibly imagined the vastness of the NWR System as it exists today. It is hoped that the future will hold the addition of even more lands into the system to help conserve America's fish and wildlife resources while providing significant opportunities for hunting, fishing and wildlife-associated recreation.

This first season will continue through Sept. 21.

The second proposed statewide dove season opens Oct. 11 and ends Nov. 2. The third season begins Dec. 27 and concludes Jan. 11. Shooting hours for dove hunting are 30 minutes before sunrise until sunset.

Enforcement authorities remind dove hunters that mourning doves are protected by state and federal laws. Shooters must have their shotguns plugged and incapable of holding more than three shells. Each hunter must have a valid state hunting license signed and on their person before going afield. The legal daily limit of mourning doves is 15, and the possession limit is 30. A possession limit is not permitted on the opening day of any season.

'Greater Tuna' runs through July 19

THE SEA COAST ECHO

Court St. Cabaret is currently running its first show, "Greater Tuna," through July 19 at Court St. Station's new dinner theater.

Colleen Abadie, of Bay St. Louis, will direct this two-person show starring Glen Couvillion and herself.

The show began as a simple party skit based on a political cartoon more than 20 years ago in Austin, Texas.

Writers Joe Sears, Jaston Williams and Ed Howard transformed this sketch about small-town country life into a critically acclaimed production.

"Greater Tuna" is a comedy about Texas' third smallest town, "where the Lion's Club is too liberal and Patsy Cline never dies."

Couvillion and Abadie will portray several of the town's eccentric inhabitants, including men, women, children and even pets.

The show will run every Friday and Saturday night through July 19.

Seating for dinner begins a 6 p.m. with the show starting at 8 p.m.

For dinner and the show, tickets are $30 per person. Tickets for the show only are $15 per person. To make reservations, call 228-467-3636.

Chorale seeks new members for 2nd decade

THE SEA COAST ECHO

The Coast Chorale, one of our state's premier singing ensembles, will embark upon its second decade this autumn. The Coast Chorale, which consistently performs throughout the Mississippi Gulf Coast and south Mississippi has also been heard nationally and internationally. Most recently many of its members performed the music of British composer John Rutter, under his direction in Carnegie Hall. The Chorale has also performed and was well received in Austria and Italy. New members in all singing voices are being sought for the new season that begins with the first full rehearsal on Tuesday September 9th. You don't have to be an operatic diva or one of the "three tenors." Informal voice screenings will be held between 6:00 and 6:45 on Tuesday the 9th of September. The purpose is to determine your singing voice for proper placement in the Chorale. Full rehearsal will follow at 7:00 PM with subsequent rehearsals held on following Tuesdays at that same time. All rehearsals as well as the voice screenings, available before most rehearsals early in the season, are held at Trinity Episcopal Church in Pass Christian. If you need more information feel free to contact Joy Mehrtens, artistic director at 463-9245 or Eric Meindl, president at 228 466 9529.
